CHELSEA HALL

ORIGINAL PURPOSE

The house and property originally belonged to early film star Francis Wilson, who entertained many of the famous theatrical people of the era in his home. In later years it was the locale for several scenes in "The Million Dollar Mystery," one of the first serial motion picture thrillers produced by the Thanhouser Corp., which had studios in New Rochelle. Purchased in 1918 for a student residence, Merici Hall, it included the carriage or caretaker's house and land around both structures. First residents were students of the Merici School for Girls; in 1920, the college students moved in. In 1943, Ursulines from across the United States, Canada and Mexico began to use it as the House of Studies. In 1968 the name was changed from Ursuline House of Studies to Chelsea. In 1970 a group of students and faculty piloted the Living/Learning Experience in Chelsea, and in 1972, Chelsea Hall began to house New Resources services.
